RELOCATEES

TOM HAYASE, who formerly was at Norway, Maine has been spending the summer with the Lisle Fellowship in New York State. "Our leading purpose is to bring a more truer, more meaningful concept of Christian brotherhood to the individual, to the people, to the community," he writes from Lisle.

TAI SHIGAKI, who formerly helped with our Senior Sunday School has been visiting the Crow Indian Reservation in Montana. She pens: "We've made tours of the homes and ranches and have seen cattle branding, sheep shearing, the Indians at feast, Sun dance, climbed and worshipped by the creeks, rocks, and streams. Have seen sufferings and poverty and need for Christian work."

REN KIMURA has been studying at Chesbrough Seminary summer school. "How's RFCC?" he inquired and tells us that he is now stydying Acts and Epistles. Write him at North Chile, New York.
